SALLIE P. ASCHE CONFERENCE TRAVEL AWARDS AVAILABLE FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS AND POST-DOCS

The Center for Vital Longevity is pleased to have a limited number of Sallie P. Asche Travel Awards to support travel of graduate students and post-docs to the 2019 Dallas Aging & Cognition Conference. The Travel Awards will be given based on merit. We encourage trainees to apply. The awards will cover registration and provide an additional $500 to be used for air, taxi and hotel, at the awardee's discretion. The applications will be reviewed by the Conference Organizing Committee (comprised of CVL faculty).

Application Deadline October 15, 2018. Notification of Awards Nov. 1, 2018.

Application Instructions

We require only three things:

- 1) 150-word abstract for the conference.
- 2) 150-word statement about value of conference to you.
- 3) A curriculum vitae.

To apply, please send these three items in an e-mail to denise@utdallas.edu

About Sallie P. Asche

Sallie Asche was one of CVL's very first supporters. She was a founding member of the Center's Advisory Council and a close friend of both Mary Susan Barnhill (who played a role in the development of CVL and continues to serve on the CVL Advisory Council) and Denise Park (CVL founding director). She cared immensely about making the world a better place, supporting the sciences, and understanding how scientists, through research, could learn to cure disease. Sallie will forever be a part of the advances Center scientists are making toward understanding how to slow the aging of the mind.
